AT THE SIGN OF THE SKULL.

It's "Gallop and go!" and "Slow, now, slow!"
With every man in this life below,
But the things of this world are a fleeting show.

The postchaise Time that all must take
Is old with clay and dust;
Two horses strain its rusty brake
Named Pleasure and Disgust.

Our luggage totters on its roof
Of Vanity and Care,
As Hope, the postboy, spurs each hoof
Or heavy eyed Despair.

And now a comrade with us rides,
Love, haply, or Remorse,
And that dim traveler besides,
Gaunt Memory on a horse.

And be we king or be we kern
Who ride the roads of Sin,
No matter how the roads may turn
They lead us to that inn.

Unto that inn within that land
Of silence and of gloom,
Whose ghastly landlord takes our hand
And leads us to our room.

It's "Gallop and go!" and "Slow, now, slow!"
With every man in this life below,
But the things of this world are a fleeting show.

IN GRANADA

The Story of a Soulless Child.

BY MADELENE YALE WYNNE.

"Pepita," said I, "do tell me a story."

"Senora Maria Madalena, would you like to hear about Seraphita? She was born in Granada. That was 100 years ago. She was born in a high place. Her mother was of a great family, and her father was great, too, but he was very wild, and Seraphita was the prettiest thing that ever was born in Granada. Everybody said so, and her mother used to think that the sun rose on the east side of her little bed and set on the west.

"The days ran merrily till Seraphita was 4 months old. Then she died. Her mother had so much heart grief that she lost her wits. For one whole day she sat, cold and still, without a tear, and then she cried aloud and began to tear out handfuls of her smooth black hair, and it was a great pity, for her hair was black and long and glistened like satin. She was called the satin haired. But she forgot how beautiful she was, and she would not eat anything or even sleep.

"Two nights after Seraphita died and was lying as white and beautiful as an angel, with wax candles at her head and feet and with a white flower in her hand, her mother went quietly into the room and sent the old nurse who was watching over Seraphita away. Then she closed the door and threw herself on her knees and prayed so hard that her prayers could not get up to heaven, for they were more like curses than prayers, and, Senora Maria Madalena, it is not good to pray like that. One must not send up prayers that are not fit to go to heaven, for then St. Peter shuts the gates of heaven, and the prayers go wandering up and down in the great spaces of air, where there is no one to answer them.

"The devil, who is everywhere but in heaven, came to her and asked, with a very sweet voice, for he can use any voice he likes, 'What is it that Seraphita's mother is praying for?'

"'I want my child back. I want her in my arms that are so empty and my heart that aches so.'

"And then the devil told her. I do not know exactly how he told her, but he made her know that he could give Seraphita back to her just as she had been, with her rosy cheeks and her black eyes and her pretty black hair, which was going to be like her mother's. He could do this, only he could not give her soul back. She must be always without a soul.

"And Seraphita's mother talked with the devil, for her wits were gone, and she did not know right from wrong, and she promised anything if he would only give her baby back to her again, even without any soul. And the devil very politely said he did not want anything to be given to him. He was glad to give the child back so long as she did not ask for the soul.

"And then while the mother looked at Seraphita the pink came into the baby's cheeks, and she smiled, and then, because her joy was so great, the mother cried out loud, and her voice could be heard way down in the street. Then everybody came running in to see what was the matter, and the father was so happy he carried Seraphita again to the church, and they had another ceremony, and this time he paid even more gold, and there was a great festa in Granada.

"You see, nobody but the mother knew that only Seraphita's body was there, that she hadn't any soul and never could have one; only the mother knew, and she could not be happy.

"She grew very thin, and her smooth satin hair turned white on top just where the devil had laid his hand, so she wore a veil, even in the house, and she hid her eyes as if she was afraid, and she prayed day and night. Nobody knew what she prayed, because she did not dare to tell even her husband.

"By and by she grew so afraid and sad because Seraphita somehow didn't seem to her any more like her own child. She was like a beautiful wax doll, but she was not wax, and she looked just like herself to everybody else, only to her mother she seemed strange, and she could not get the warm love back into her heart, even though she pressed Seraphita to her bosom night and day.

"The little baby grew in spite of that, and she grew prettier and prettier all the time. Everybody loved her except her mother, and that was just what the devil wanted.

"The day Seraphita was a year old her mother could not bear it any longer, and she went to her priest and confessed [illegible] it, and then very soon she died, because she had kept her secret so long it had just burned her heart out.

"After that, no one knew how it happened, but pretty soon everybody began to whisper and look queerly at Seraphita when the nurse carried her into the street, and her father seemed troubled, and he talked with the priest and wanted to pay some more money to the church, but they wouldn't have any more ceremonies for Seraphita, and the priests tried to make the people stop talking. What they said was 'nonsense.' But it was not nonsense, and so they went on talking among themselves, and they would take their own children out of the way when Seraphita was old enough to play about.

"So she grew up all alone except for her father and her nurse and the priest who went to live in the house, which showed that the church thought there was something in it, else why should a priest go and live in the house?

"One day when Seraphita was out walking she came across some little boys who were stoning a black kitten to kill it, for everybody knows that black cats belong to the devil. And Seraphita ran right in among the flying stones, and not one of them hit her, for the devil held his hand between her and the stones, and she caught up the devil's kitten and hugged it tight, while the stones fell at her feet, and the boys cried out: 'Devil's brat! Devil's cat!'"

"Pepita," said I, "she seemed to me to have been a very nice, soft hearted little girl."

"Oh, no, Senora Maria Madalena! You see, black cats belong to the devil, and if she had had any soul she couldn't have taken one in her arms.

"She carried it home, and she used to feed it, and she had to hide it away, because, of course, nobody wanted to have a devil's cat around, and the cat would run and jump into Seraphita's arms whenever she came near, but it would fly like mad and its hair would all stand on end when any one else came around, which shows, does it not, that something was wrong? And another thing showed that all was not right with Seraphita; the priest began to teach, and she learned faster than any child should. There was an evil spirit that whispered the words into her ear, so that she did not have to study.

"She had power over horses, too, and if she just put her lips to a horse's ear he would turn and rub his nose on her face. You see, horses have no soul, and they knew that Seraphita hadn't any.

"And, besides that, she always looked very old and grave when anybody was near, but when she was alone in the fields or in the woods she would laugh out loud, and they could hear her talk with the birds, for she knew bird language, and she would lean over the water and talk to herself or to the fishes. Oh, it was true, she had no soul!"

"Well, what became of her?" I asked as Pepita paused to emphasize her statement.

"She grew up so beautiful that strangers would stop in the street and look at her as she passed, but of course everybody soon found out all about her, and then they would not look at her—at least they would not look her in the eye—unless they had a charm on."

"Do you mean that she had the 'evil eye?'"

"Oh, yes! Why, she could make any one have bad luck just by looking at them, and she could make flowers grow and blossom and be more colors than any other flowers. She knew she had the 'evil eye,' for she never went anywhere or visited the sick or the poor, though she had plenty of money. She used to send the priest with food or clothes. You see, she knew."

"And what became of poor little Seraphita?"

"Why, you see, when she was about 20 years old she was very ill again, and she lay in a trance for three days. The doctors wouldn't go near her, and her own old nurse had died, and they couldn't get any one to take care of her till finally the priest sent to the convent for one of the sisters. She was a very good woman, and she went to the house, and, creeping on her hands and knees so that the devil could not get hold of her, she went right into the room and prayed all night. Her prayers went straight up to heaven, and she prayed that Seraphita might die and that before she died her soul should be given back to her.

"And, Senora Maria Madalena, just as the sky began to grow pink in the east and the white mist blew across the vega and the birds began to call what do you think happened?

"A beautiful white dove flew into the window and alighted on Seraphita's breast, and, laying its bill close to her mouth, it breathed a soul into her, and then the dove just vanished, and Seraphita was dead.

"Then, because God had been good to him and had given Seraphita a soul again, her father built an orphan asylum and called it after her, 'The Seraphita,' and you can see it over there, with the sun shining on it. It looks like gold."

"It is a pretty story, Pepita, but do you believe she had no soul?"

"The senora knows I am English on my father's side, but my mother was Spanish."

"So you are half Spanish and half believe it. Is that so, Pepita?"

"Yes, senora."

The Nightingales.

The father of Florence Nightingale was William Shore, who assumed by letters patent the surname of Nightingale in 1815. The name, together with the family property, came from old Peter Nightingale, against whom Arkwright, inventor of the spinning jenny, brought in 1776 one of his actions for infringement of patent rights. Lea Hurst, the home of the Nightingales in Derbyshire, is only two miles from Cromford, where Arkwright set up his mill and the adjacent manor house of which he purchased from Nightingale.

Posing as a Model.

A curious feature of a model's occupation is her posing for an artist who is painting some one else. Wealthy people are capricious and often do not care to give long sittings. Therefore, after the artist has caught the expression of the face, he will call in a model to pose for the figure. Some models do not care to do this, as part of their enjoyment of their occupation consists in seeing themselves reproduced on canvas, but there are others who are quite willing to help fill out.

Various models have various points of excellence, and often a painter will employ at different stages in the progress of his work from three to four models for one figure on his canvas. One model is known for her coloring, another for her hands, another for her hair. An artist generally notes in his address book the characteristics of a model after her name. These quotations are taken at random from an artist's address book: "Fine young Jewess," "English, tall and slim, blond, costume;" "Good back," "Good figure, short legs, ivory tone."—Cosmopolitan.

Shoving the Queer.

The game of counterfeiting in this country is played by people of all nationalities, and, although some women and children are used as tools, men take the principal parts. After having made the coin the great problem is how to convert it into good money. The maker rarely takes part in that operation. It is the business of gangs, which consist usually of two persons, known as the "holder" and the "shover."

The holder carries a stock of the counterfeit money, and the shover has one piece. This he takes to a store or a saloon and buys something for a small amount, and when he comes into the street the holder sees him from his position a block away, joins him, receives the good money and hands him another counterfeit.

The object is to work so that the shover, if detected, may plead innocence and prove that the piece is the only one that he has and that he has no other money. Some clever operators go so far as to mix good coin with the bad.

To Gauge His Wife's Temper.

"I heard about a peculiar case of henpecked husband recently," said a young woman the other day.

"What was it?" her friend inquired.

"There is a man who has some difficulty in gauging his wife's temper. At times she is considerate of his welfare and at other times—well, he rather thinks that married life is a failure.

"He has a peculiar manner of finding out the state of his wife's feeling toward him. In the evening when he returns home from work he never steps into the house without going through a sort of ceremony. First he throws his hat in the house, and then he seats himself on the steps and waits. If five minutes pass without the hat being thrown out again, he enters and generally finds his wife very agreeable. However, if the hat is thrown out again the unfortunate man seeks hospitality for the night somewhere else rather than brave the anger of his helpmeet."—Cleveland Leader.

An Approach to Perpetual Motion.

A clock is to be seen at Brussels which comes about as near being a perpetual motion machine as can be invented, for the sun does the winding. The following is the method by which it works: A shaft exposed to the solar rays causes an up draft of air, which sets the fan in motion. The fan actuates mechanism which raises the weight of the clock until it reaches the top and then puts a break on the fan till the weight has gone down a little, when the fan is again liberated and proceeds to act as before. As long as the sun shines frequently enough and, the machinery does not wear out the clock will keep in perpetual motion.

GIRL WOMEN.

The general standard of measurement for womanhood is "grown-up-ness." When a girl is emancipated from school and arrives at the dignity of trailing skirts and elaborate hair dressing she is looked upon as a young woman. But nature knows nothing of such standards. When the womanly function is established womanhood is attained according to her standards, and there is need of womanly care and caution. It is girlish ignorance or neglect at this critical time which often results in long years of after misery.

Mothers who perceive the evidences of functional derangement in young girls should promptly have them begin the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, tranquilizes the nerves and tones up the whole system.

"My troubles started during my girlhood," writes Miss Flora I. Greer, of 107 Howe Street, Akron, O., "but did not prove serious until 1893. From that time I did not see a well day. I suffered at every monthly period with terrible headache, irritation of the spine and pains in my heels. I had soreness through my hips and ovaries all the time and constant backache. One doctor would tell me one thing ailed me, another would say something altogether different, but they only relieved me. I then wrote you and followed your advice. I took five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and five vials of 'Pellets.' Have not had a single symptom of my old trouble so far. Can sleep good, work hard, and eat solid and substantial food without distress."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the bowels and stimulate the sluggish liver.

THE OBSERVER.

A PROBLEM FOR MUSICIANS.

Rag time is dying a natural death. We are getting tired of it. The craze that swept the country and seemed to give every one the cake walk feeling is about at an end. Rag time appealed to the masses because of a certain swing it possesses. It has a rhythm that the untrained ear can easily follow. The small boy can tramp his foot to it. The gallery god can whistle it. The tolerance of music of this character shows a primitive taste. The rhythm it possesses falls on the ear like the rub-a-rub-dub of a drum or tom-tom. It is a popular rhythm. The rhythm which has pleased the aborigines and appealed to small children throughout all time. Then, too, beside simplicity of rhythm rag time generally has a three-part melody running through it. This is also simple and arranged so that any one after hearing it two or three times can whistle or hum it. You become familiar with every strain and when you hear it played again it appeals to you because it is familiar. You feel flattered that you know and understand what the musicians are trying to do. You can now pose as a critic and crack your whip of censorship if you don't like their work. Who would not be a master, even in the realm of rag time? Is it not better than to play puppet to a few critics at grand opera?

Such is the line of reasoning the patrons of our popular concerts and musical entertainments have adopted of late. But now they are tired of being critics. Rag time has so much sameness about it that there is never much to praise or censure. It affords too passive a kind of criticism. The novelty has worn off. Demand for it is growing less and less. Now we must give something in place of it. Music is always craved, and for rag time there must be a substitute. We would like to substitute the classics. But such a transition would be too abrupt. There must be a gradual rise in the scale of appreciation. Popular fancy must be handled in such a way that it learns to understand and appreciate almost unconsciously, then when you get it up to a certain standard it will not retrograde. Popular music with the simple rhythm and three-part melody will fail to satisfy. Higher-class music will be in demand—music that will satisfy all moods and that will play on all the passions. We can picture this degree in the musical taste. We know what cultivation will do, but the problem is: How are we going to educate music lovers up to this point? By music lovers I mean listeners as opposed to performers. How are we going to educate our audiences up to the musician's standard without giving each one of them a technical training?

It is a problem apparently difficult. It may be unsoluble, but that is for musicians and art philosophers to decide.

That love is blind and lovers cannot see is an old adage. It is a beautiful adage, too, for love is always blind to the faults, never to the charms, of the beloved. The judgment of a man in love concerning the object of his affection is perverted. It is therefore valueless. Then, too, the man who sees through the eyes of love is the author of many white lies. It may be unconscious prevarication but it is no less prevarication.

The lover undeniably is guilty of grave misdemeanors. Strip him of these, take away the eyes of love, and the poetry of life is gone. You have a practical man—a critic pronouncing judgment on cold, hard facts. The judgment, however, is sound and truth gives place to fiction. And yet the poet tells us:

"Lies are the soul of loving."

Should we doubt this assertion call to mind a few examples like the following:

If some ardent wooer tells his beloved that her neck is like the swan, untold bliss fills the maiden's heart. If two years after marriage he asks her why her neck is so scrawny, he tells the truth but love has fled. So with a pair of eyes. When they are compared to diamonds, a heart is yours. When they are just eyes, or when you are told they are taking on a greenish hue, the poetry of life has passed away.

What is more beautiful than love? The most orthodox of us surely would not have cold practicability even at the price of truth.

Our farmers are going to take active measures toward moving the grain tied up at Port Costa. Ruin stares them in the face if they do not get their crops to market pretty quick. They do not deserve to be treated as they are. The farmer is supplying us with our daily bread. The strikers themselves are dependent on him for sustenance. The very fact of injuring his business should cause those engaged in the controversy to conciliate. They have failed to see matters in that light, however, and now wheat growers have wisely issued the following ultimatum:

"The arteries through which the grain finds an outlet to the markets of Europe must and shall be cleared. We take no account of the rights or the wrongs of the controversy between employers and laborers; it is not our fight; but our crops must be moved to market. That is our only salvation. To prevent incalculable loss to ourselves, to preserve our homes, we must take action toward breaking the tie-up of grain. The crop must be moved, and we are going to move it."

President Roosevelt is said to be carrying a gun these days. It is hardly probable that he will have occasion to use it. His former reputation as a fighter is a pretty good coat of mail.

Nora Schneider is no longer the wife of "Sir" Harry Cooper. She is a wiser woman since meeting Mr. No Account and will probably be very skeptical of gentlemen henceforth.

O, woman, lovely woman,
Once more you lead the van,
An impovement club you're forming
To rival every man.

O, men, collect your patience,
Be mild and meek and sweet,
For when your wife the new club joins
You won't get much to eat.

You'll have to put the kettle on
And get your own night meal,
While she is busy working
For the public weal.

You'll have to darn all your own socks,
Do washing in the tub,
When wifie gets it into her head
To join the Improvement Club.

BACK FROM EUROPE.

Clarence Nauman, Champion Wing Shot, Wins New Laurels.

Clarence C. Nauman, the champion wing shot of the Pacific Coast, and a well-known visitor to this place, arrived in San Francisco Tuesday after an absence of seven months. The Bulletin, in commenting on Mr. Nauman's return, says: "During his absence he has participated in some of the principal trap-shooting events taking place in the United States and Europe. He was one of the high guns at the Grand American Handicap and Baltimore Tournament in April. Shortly after these meetings he visited England and shot live pigeons and blue rocks with the most exclusive clubs, several of which he had to join in order to have the privilege of trap-shooting on their grounds. His shooting in England was of such a skillful character that he was invariably distance handicapped to such a degree that the gun was beaten by the heavy distance penalty. He shot from 34 to 36 yards slat, while his opponents were posted at distances varying from 25 to 32 yards. Even at that he generally held his own, winning and dividing innumerable sweepstake purses and a number of cups.

He shot against the leading experts of Europe, whom he met at the traps in Paris and other French cities, and also at the swell watering places in Belgium, where they have important trap-shooting meets. At Namur he was one of twenty-two men who were straight on a score of twenty birds. In this match the purse amounted to five thousand dollars. During his last shoots in France he ran a total of twenty pigeons straight and lost but one out of eighty shot at.

During his visit abroad Nauman was the favored guest of some of the old world's leading sportsmen, and the California expert's shotgun was a factor that created a feeling of uneasiness in the breasts of many of the Monte Carlo trap-shooting veterans. He gave all of his competitors in various cities a run for money and trophies that will make his visit among European trap-shooting enthusiasts remembered as that of one of the most skillful shooters who ever went across the ocean."

Runaway.

While driving into town Sunday Ed Dowdall and Billy Gordon were thrown from a spring wagon near the iron bridge across Sonoma creek, but fortunately escaped serious injury. Two horses were attached to the wagon, one of them being a colt which they were breaking to harness. As they approached the bridge the colt suddenly bolted, the seat gave way and both men were dumped unceremoniously into a ditch alongside the road. The horses, being without a guiding hand, tore madly along Napa street until Wegner's corner was reached, when the wagon collided with a shade tree and the runaways were brought to a standstill. The damage to the wagon and harness was slight.

A Wonderful Hypnotist.

Prof. Fait, the hypnotist, gave a series of performances in this place the fore part of the week. As a hypnotist and sleight of hand performer he is one of the most clever artists that we have ever seen here, or any where else for that matter. The influence he exerted over his subjects while they were in the hypnotic state was something really wonderful and at times very amusing. Should Prof. Fait ever visit the town again he will be greeted by one of the largest audiences ever assembled here, as his hypnotic power has set everybody to talking.

Jake Munfrey, who recently returned from the Orient, has been in town the past week visiting his mother. Mr. Munfrey since his return has secured a berth on the river boat the J. D. Peters, plying between San Francisco and Stockton. He leaves for the city Monday.

Get the Most Out of Your Food

You don't and can't if your stomach is weak. A weak stomach does not digest all that is ordinarily taken into it. It gets tired easily, and what it fails to digest is wasted.

Among the signs of a weak stomach are uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, and disagreeable belching.

"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla at different times for stomach troubles, and a run down condition of the system, and have been greatly benefited by its use. I would not be without it in my family. I am troubled especially in summer with weak stomach and nausea and find Hood's Sarsaparilla invaluable." E. B. HICKMAN, W. Chester, Pa.

THE SWISS CELEBRATION

IT BRINGS TOGETHER A LARGE CROWD.

An Orderly and Successful Affair.

A fine day, a large gathering of people from near-by cities and towns, an attractive parade and a well attended ball in the evening all contributed their share toward making the celebration of the 610th anniversary of Switzerland's independence in this place a success in every way.

The sky was overhung with light fleecy clouds through which the sun struggled to get through. This natural shade and the balmy breezes that were wafted across the valley made the day an ideal one for out-of-door pleasures.

The festivities were inaugurated with a grand parade headed by the Petaluma brass band of fifteen pieces.

Following the band came in their order:

The Sonoma Volunteer Firemen in uniform.

Members of the Sonoma Swiss Club on foot.

The cantons of Switzerland, represented by twenty-two young girls seated in a gaily-decorated float drawn by four horses.

Uncle Sam, Wm. Tell and son and Grudli.

Wheelmen on handsomely decorated bicycles.

Then came a long line of carriages in which were seated the orators, Hon. E. B. Martinelli and Dr. J. H. Sartori; President of the Day Julius Fochetti and Geo. L. Bulotti, President of the Sonoma Swiss Club.

City officials and prominent Swiss residents of this and adjoining counties.

Arriving upon the picnic grounds the procession was reviewed by Grand Marshal Victor Sartori and dismissed.

The literary and musical exercises were then inaugurated, the principal features of which were the orations delivered by Hon. E. B. Martinelli of San Rafael and Dr. J. H. Sartori of San Francisco. Both gentlemen are forceful and agreeable speakers and it was really a literary treat to listen to them. Both held the attention of every one within reach of their voices throughout their addresses and were loudly applauded at their conclusion. These gentlemen won many friends and hosts of admirers among the assembled throng.

The literary exercises over dancing and general jollity followed and was kept up until late in the afternoon.

The ball in the evening, which was managed by Tony Kiser, was a great success, all the available floor space of Union Hall being taken up by the dancers.

This celebration was the most successful ever held under the auspices of the Sonoma Swiss National Club.

ENGAGEMENT LUNCHEON.

Miss Dora Burris, Daughter of Banker Burris, Will Wed.

At a charming luncheon given at the Burris home, Tuesday afternoon, the engagement of Miss Dora Burris to Skelton Glaister was announced. The bride elect is the pretty black-eyed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Burris and is a girl of lovely character and attractive personality. Mr. Glaister is a rising young business man of town and enjoys the esteem of a large circle of friends because of his sterling worth and genial disposition.

At the luncheon given in honor of the announcement eleven of Miss Burris' girl friends were present. Miss Grace Mathews of Ukiah assisted the young hostess in receiving. After the company assembled there was music and dancing until 5 o'clock, when all repaired to the dining room. The decorations here were in pink and green. Duchess roses, trailing vines and palms had converted the room into a perfect bower of loveliness. The table was prettily arranged and made attractive by the addition of handsome pink satin streamers which formed a canopy over the heads of those seated.

After the announcement was made there were appropriate speeches, toasts and songs composed for the occasion by Miss C. C. Granice. The menu from salted almonds and olives to frozen sherbet was most dainty, and an hour and a half was spent in merry making at the table.

After luncheon the company went out on the lawn where pictures were taken of the pretty bride to be surrounded by her young friends.

The invited were Mrs. Pauline McMullen, Misses Bessie Knight, Grace Mathews, Jessie Wisecarver, Flora Hopps, Theo Bates, Celeste Granice, Etta McGimsey, Claire Hope, Julie Granice and Maud Young.

Miss Burris and Mr. Glaister will be married next month. They will reside in a pretty home on Broadway.

STORMY SEASON OPENS.

Jupiter Pluvius Turns On His Flood Gates.

As predicted by Irl R. Hicks, the great weather prophet, the stormy season opened last Sunday night and for eight or ten hours the rain fell steadily and at times in torrents. This was followed by desultory showers Monday and a heavy rainfall Wednesday. On Thursday morning it cleared up, since which time sunshine and blue skies have predominated.

The rain did little or no damage to grapes but much harm was done to baled hay, which owing to the strike in San Francisco remains uncovered in the fields awaiting the end of the tie up and transportation to market. Another storm it is feared will render it unfit for shipment.

The storm of Sunday and Monday, according to local weather prophets, portends an early and severe winter.

PROGRESSIVE WOMEN.

Ladies of Sonoma to Organize an Improvement Club.

It is gratifying to hear that we are really going to have a Ladies' Improvement Club. A number of ladies met together at the residence of Mrs. F. Clewe last Saturday and took preliminary measures in regard to organization. A list of two hundred and fifty names was made out and invitations will be extended to that many ladies to be present at the first meeting which will be held on Saturday, October 5th.

At this meeting permanent officers will be elected and a plan of action mapped out for needed improvements. The ladies of Sonoma will likely adopt ideas from the improvement clubs of their sister cities and raise money for the worthy cause by novel entertainments or fetes of some kind held throughout the year.

Not only will the Improvement Club do highly commendable work but it will also tend to bring the town and valley into closer touch. There will be exchange of ideas and social intercourse which is bound to broaden character and give life and impetus to the movement.

All the ladies who have the prosperity of our town and the surrounding country at heart are urged to attend. The ladies have requested us to say that if any one fails to receive a card requesting her presence at the meeting it has been due to an oversight and it behooves that person to call on the Secretary pro tem., Mrs. Appleton, and have her add her name to the list.

The Improvement Club will be confined to no particular class or section. All will be welcome who decide to join. It is hoped that every one will attend the first meeting that they may have a voice in the selection of officers and present any ideas they may have in regard to manner and means of improvement.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, SEPT. 28, 1901.

Sweeping Back the River.

Some time ago two hulking hoboes who had just dismounted from a Central freight train asked a Yonkers man for a loan of 10 cents to secure some food. He took them to a restaurant and promised to provide them with work as soon as they had finished eating. When they reported for work, he said: "Boys, my cellar's full of water, and I want you to pump it out. I've fixed these hand pumps right here on the sidewalk. Never mind the people. When they come along and ask questions, just you say nothing, but pump till the water's out of the cellar. Keep cool. Don't hurry, but pump, and I will pay you well."

Now, a tributary to the Nepperhan river ran through this man's store cellar and out under the sidewalk, and the pumps reached down into the river. The water pumped out by the hoboes ran into the sewer and back into the Nepperhan, but as the sidewalk was tightly flagged the pumpers didn't know the size of their job.

The street became jammed with spectators, who roared with merriment as they watched the hoboes. All but the men at the pumps knew what was up. When the sun went down, it descended on the wrath of two Weary Willies, armed with coupling pins. They hunted all night for their kind employer, but he was in New York telling his friends.

Chocolate.

In South America the retail price for the better grades of chocolate averages about $1 a pound, while in Italy, France, England and in the United States the better grades sell at a much lower price. In America the ordinary chocolate of trade sells for about one-third of the price that is charged for it where it is produced. The cause of this, the producers say, is that the original product is adulterated greatly before reaching its final market, a cheaper article than the cocoa bean constituting the large proportion of 90 per cent of the chocolates of commerce.

The cocoa bean from which chocolate is manufactured is produced in its finest form in Venezuela, though various other parts of Central and South America grow and export large quantities. Two crops of the bean are gathered each year, and the manufacture consists simply in grinding up the beans into a meal and then adding sugar and arrowroot, with the necessary flavor, usually vanilla or cinnamon. The mass is moistened until it is in a semifluid state, after which it is run into molds of the proper shape.

Cave Dwellers In Dieppe.

People who only know the gayer side of Dieppe would be surprised to hear of the existence of the cave dwellers there. One is apt to connect such people with the knawed bones and flint implements of prehistoric times. But here they are at Dieppe within a stone's throw of the casino, and they may be seen any day about the town selling the shellfish from the rocks outside their habitations. They have certain marked characteristics, one being a peculiar complexion of their own that can be traced largely to a disinclination on the part of the cave dweller to avail himself of the water that washes so close to his door. Their language also is peculiar, but whether it really belongs to the stone age no one seems to have discovered. They have to hold a license from the municipality, though, which savors of no age but the present. —London Chronicle.

England's Old Common Field System.

A "common field" is quite distinct from a "common." It is a field belonging to numerous owners. The land consists of long narrow strips, perhaps not more than ten yards wide and running parallel with one another. What are the exact rules of cultivation that obtain in Kent today we do not know, but of old it was usual to have a regular rotation, such as wheat one year, barley or oats the second and fallow the third. When the crops were harvested, each member of the community getting his or her share, all could put in their cattle, which roamed over the whole field, feeding on the stubble, etc. And this was termed the "right of sack." The "common field" system was gradually done away with by statutes in the reigns of George III and William IV.—London Express.

Time to Go to Work.

A woman was once trying to induce General Sherman to use his influence for her son in order that he might be given a place in the army, for which, however, he had shown no particular fitness. "His father was in the army," said the urgent mother, "and so were his grandfather and his great-grandfather, and it seems as if he ought to follow the line."

"Hm! Three generations in the army," said the general. "Don't you think, madam, that it is about time for one member of the family to work for a living?"

We Are Shorter at Night.

It is an undoubted fact that the human body is shorter at night than in the morning, and that is due to the weight of the body compressing the intervertebral cartilages. During sleep or while in a recumbent position, the pressure being removed, their natural elasticity enables them to resume their normal size; consequently the height of an individual will vary from three-eighths to half an inch between morning and night.

Holed and Cornered.

Wife—I mended the hole in your trousers pocket last night after you had gone to bed, John, dear. Now, am I not a thoughtful wife?

Husband (dubiously)—Well—er—y-e-s, you are thoughtful enough, my dear, but how the mischief did you discover that there was a hole in my pocket?—Exchange.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under the Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid, gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes, causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to directions which acompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE.

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on the receipt of One Dollar. Address, Dept. E 428, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market street, Philadelphia.

In Retreat.

Down from the upper air floated the strains of music, yet Neptune was visibly annoyed.

"What's gnawing at thy vitals, sire?" asked a mermaid.

"I wish in the name of Orpheus," said the sea king, "that boating parties could sing something else besides 'A Life on the Ocean Wave.'"

And forthwith he crawled into a cave and pulled the cave in after him. —New York Marine Journal.

Curing a Mule.

A mule in a pack train which was usually loaded with salt discovered that by lying down when fording a certain stream and allowing the salt to dissolve he could lighten his burden. The muleteer once loaded him with sponges instead, which absorbed water when he lay down in the stream and made his burden fourfold heavier. The mule was cured of his smartness.

"I listened to him for an hour today while he told me about what his baby had said or tried to say, and just as I was about to tell him about ours he left me, saying he had to catch a train." —Baltimore American.

A Minister's Mistake.

A city minister was recently handed a notice to be read from his pulpit. Accompanying it was a clipping from a newspaper bearing upon the matter. The clergyman started to read the extract and found that it began: "Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure." This was hardly what he expected and, after a moment's hesitation, he turned it over, and found on the other side the matter intended for the reading.
